

Abstract

5 The invention relates to a composite shaped block produced by placing a top plate serving as a covering layer onto a supporting body. This supporting body is provided with a binder compound and is produced by a shaping process. The invention also relates to a method for producing composite shaped blocks of this type.